

CAMP BULLIS REGIONAL CONSERVATION PARTNERSHIP PROGRAM

CONSERVATION EASEMENT FUNDING

The Camp Bullis Regional Conservation Partnership Program (RCPP) is seeking voluntary landowners interested in permanently protecting their natural resources and agricultural lands from development with a tailored conservation easement. Agriculture, wildlife habitat, and open spaces are compatible land uses that protect the mission and training capabilities of Joint Base San Antonio - Camp Bullis.

$1.9 million in funding is available for conservation easements, which conserve water resources, agricultural productivity, wildlife habitat, and dark skies.

WHO CAN APPLY?

Within the project area, private landowners interested in preserving their property in perpetuity can apply. Funding is limited. Priority will be based on proximity to Camp Bullis, development threat, connectivity to other conserved lands, and ecologically important elements like waterways and karst features.

APPLICATIONS ACCEPTED
OCTOBER 11 – NOVEMBER 21

TEXAS A&M NATURAL RESOURCES INSTITUTE

At the Texas A&M Natural Resources Institute, our work improves the conservation and management of natural resources and private land stewardship through interdisciplinary and applied research, education and policy. We are committed to solving natural resource issues and engaging land managers, citizens and policymakers throughout the process. We are where conservation and applied research meet.

REGIONAL CONSERVATION PARTNERSHIP PROGRAM

A Regional Conservation Partnership Program (RCPP) is a partner-driven approach to conservation that funds solutions to natural resource challenges on working land. By leveraging collective resources and collaborating on common goals, RCPP demonstrates the power of public-private partnerships in delivering results for agriculture and conservation.

The Camp Bullis RCPP is administered by the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) and led by Texas A&M Natural Resources Institute.
